NYC Department of Education
Chancellor Richard A. Carranza

Keep the learning going this summer with free e-books and learning resources for all NYC students!

Sora is a user-friendly e-reader app that allows K-12 students access to eBooks and digital audiobooks. This summer, NYC public school students will have access to hundreds of engaging titles through Sora. Readers can discover grade-level e-books and digital audiobooks in a variety of languages and grade levels simply by logging into their DOE student account. The Sora app is available on DOE-issued iPads and can also be downloaded to any Internet enabled device or by visiting Sora's website. Review the instructions at discoversora.com/nyc to get started with Sora!

The New York City School Library System has curated a collection of K-12 fiction and non-fiction e-books. Visit https://galepages.com/nycdoe11/ebooks to view the complete collection. To access the eBooks, please email libraries@schools.nyc.gov to receive the username and password.

NOVELny (New York Online Virtual Electronic Library) contains research databases that students may access 24 hours a day, seven days a week. NOVELny does not require a log in to access in New York state. The database includes texts, newspapers and magazines, Spanish language resources, primary sources, as well as encyclopedias. Visit https://galepages.com/nycdoe11 to see a complete list of databases. To access the databases from outside of NY, please email libraries@schools.nyc.gov to receive the username and password. Please note that some of these third-party resources might only be available in English.